ANDREW GUIDI

Professional Summary

Jurist with over 40 years of legal experience, including 14.5 years as a Superior Court Judge in Alaska's Third Judicial District and over 27 years of private practice. My private practice primarily focused on personal injury, construction defect and insurance coverage litigation and trial. As a superior court judge I handled a mix of civil cases, primarily family law, child protection, probate, administrative appeals and general civil litigation. I also assisted with the court's criminal caseload, including felony trials and sentencings.

Professional Experience

Superior Court Judge, State of Alaska

Third Judicial District, Anchorage

September 2010 – March 2025

- Presided over a general jurisdiction civil docket. The Third Judicial District as a whole handles approximately 9,000+ annual filings, including felony criminal cases (2,900+), child-in-need-of-aid matters (700+), domestic relations (1,500+), general civil (1,100+), and probate (3,000+) proceedings. As a judge I was responsible for managing on a caseload of approximately 600 cases in a manner that was fair, efficient, timely and consistent with the parties' constitutional and statutory rights.
- Authored thousands of written rulings, including findings of fact and conclusions of law for bench trials, decisions on motions and appeals.
- Retained by public vote in 2014 (61.4%) and 2020 (59.0%), reflecting strong performance evaluations by the Alaska Judicial Council.
- Appointed in July 2010 by Governor Sean Parnell to fill vacancy left by Justice Craig Stowers; retired in 2025.

Delaney, Wiles, Inc.

December 1983 - September 2010

- Specialized in insurance coverage disputes, life insurance law, and complex litigation for 27 years, representing clients in state and federal courts.
- Handled diverse caseloads, achieving favorable outcomes through negotiation and trial advocacy.
- Advised corporate and individual clients on risk management, contract interpretation, and compliance with Alaska regulations.
- Mentored junior attorneys and contributed to firm strategy on high-value cases, building a reputation for ethical practice and peer-recognized excellence.

The Honorable Daniel A. Moore
