Dear Members of the Bar:

I appreciate your consideration of my candidacy for the Third Judicial District seat on the Alaska Judicial Council. By way of brief background, I have been an Alaska resident for approximately 18 years. I started my career as an Assistant Public Defender, and I have been in private practice for the last ten years. I have served on the Board of Governors of the Alaska Bar Association for the past five years, including serving a term as Bar President last year. That position provided me with an opportunity to work with attorney and non-attorney members, all of whom have sacrificed their time to work together to improve our Bar.

I am currently the Managing Partner of Ballard Spahr LLP's Anchorage office. My practice consists mainly of commercial and fiduciary litigation in both state and federal court, where I represent a wide array of individuals and corporations. I have tried approximately 50 cases to verdict and litigated matters in courts all over our state. As a lawyer appearing before a multitude of tribunals, I have come to value the quality of our judicial officers, their independence, and the seriousness with which they perform their tasks.

Similarly, I have long admired the hard work that our constitutionally created Council has performed screening and nominating applicants for Alaska's bench, evaluating the performance of sitting judges, and serving as a conduit so that our citizenry can be informed of, and participate in, the administration of justice. I will serve well on the Judicial Council, given the breadth of my leadership experience and my willingness to engage in a collaborative, consensus-driven process. It would be an honor to join the Council.
